The image shows a 'User Registration' dialog box for a service called 'Pluck'. The dialog has a title bar 'User Registration' and a Pluck logo. On the left, there is a list of reasons to register: 'Why register: Can't share. Can't sync. What can you do? More marketing stuff.' The main area contains registration fields: 'E-mail address:' with the value 'busey@pluck.com', 'Password:' with '', and 'Confirm Password:' with ''. A note states: 'E-mail addresses must be verified before the account can become active. In future versions you will be able to register multiple e-mail addresses.' Another note for passwords says: 'Passwords must be at least six characters in length and must contain at least one number or symbol.' Below these is a question 'Do you use multiple computers?' with radio buttons for 'Yes' and 'No'. A final note says: 'Select yes if you use multiple computers and you want Pluck to help you keep your web experience synchronized between them.' At the bottom are three buttons: '< Back', 'Next >', and 'Cancel'. A reference numeral '300' with an arrow points to the 'Confirm Password' field.

The image shows a 'User Registration' dialog box with a title bar. Inside, the section 'E-mail Notification Options' is highlighted. Below it, the text 'Sharing Links with Users Who Are Not Registered with Pluck' is displayed. A bold instruction asks if the user wants Pluck to email them links if they don't have the software. Two radio buttons are provided: 'Yes' (selected) and 'No'. A warning follows, stating that without this option, link sharing won't work. Below this is a text input field with the placeholder 'Enter Text' and a vertical toolbar with icons for undo, redo, bold, italic, and link. A reference number '300' with an arrow points to this toolbar. At the bottom, there is a note about email privacy and three buttons: '< Back', 'Next >', and 'Cancel'.
